

Poison and Radiation

Problem

Throughout history, governments, profiteers, experts and authorities have often betrayed humanity and poisoned people in the name of profit. Persuading politicians to implement protective policies is often difficult and slow. The tobacco issue is instructive. Decades were needed to convince governments to accept the science showing that smoking industrially, mass-produced tobacco leads to lung cancer. Today, we are exposed to many more carcinogenic and health-destroying sources of poison and radiation. Below is a short list with links to information. Students and people should respond with effective actions to protect their health.
