

The Other WW2

HOW DID NAZI GERMANY AND IMPERIAL JAPAN RISE TO POWER?

How did Germany, broken by WWI, crippled by the excessive demands of the Versailles Treaty, and burdened by the Great Depression, rise to be Europe's undisputed military and economy superpower? First, one must give credit to the German work ethic; more importantly, we must credit the creditors, the thieves, and the credit makers (who helped pay the Treaty's penalties).

"... many of America's leading corporations, from General Motors to IBM and from Standard Oil to Chase National Bank, were sympathizers and active collaborators with the Third Reich prior to and even during World War II, as documented by investigative journalists Charles Higham in Trading With The Enemy, and Edwin Black in IBM and the Holocaust. Like much else in American history, these were dirty little secrets best left alone."

The Japanese Economic Miracle

We must not imagine that the industrialized military power of Japan arose spontaneously from the minds and hands of native geniuses. Industrial capacity and technologies require access to industrial secrets that are carefully protected. Thus, Japan's quick industrialization and so-called economic miracle must have been deliberately fostered by western elites. They must have wanted to use Japan as a source of cheap labor and industrial products, just as presently they use China and the entire world. The fact that economic industrialization almost guarantees military industrialization was surely predictable and even desirable for elites who intended to crush Japan's imperial-economic ambitions before it could grow strong enough to challenge them.

WHY DID WWII OCCUR?

1. The German people, like Americans presently, were duped into thinking they were special and that the world's land and resources belonged to them.
2. Western non-German banking, financial and industrial elites encouraged war because they profited from it.
3. German elites profited from the war.
4. American elites hoped to use the war to destroy the British Empire, at which they succeeded, and Western capitalists hoped to use the war to destroy the communist state of the Soviet Union, at which they failed.
5. Germany had no interest in engaging Britain or the US in war, but Britain provoked Germany with bombing campaigns. German retaliation served as an excuse to ramp up British military expenses, which profited the military industrial complex in Britain and in the U.S., Britain's primary supplier.
6. The American and British militaries did not begin to seriously attack Germany until the German military was almost completely absorbed in fighting the Soviet Union and the Soviet Union's victories led the Soviet's to march west and threaten to claim much of Europe.
7. Repeat #1 for the Japanese effort to take, by force, the Asia's land and resources. It parallels Germany's effort. Numbers 2-6 might also have echoes for the Japanese, but I am unaware of any supporting evidence for this hypothesis. Japan was certainly provoked into bombing Pearl Harbor (<https://www.globalresearch.ca/search?q=pearl+harbor&x=0&y=0>).

The Japanese Holocaust

“While at least 67 other Japanese cities, including the capital Tokyo, were reduced to rubble by daily conventional firebombing, including the use of napalm and other incendiaries, Hiroshima and Nagasaki had been deliberately spared for the sole purpose of testing the destructiveness of the new atomic device (Claypool 11).”

The Jewish Holocaust

Western, English-speaking media is saturated with Jewish Holocaust stories and histories, even to the point of causing people to forget that many other ethnic groups have suffered similar and sometimes worse holocausts. Furthermore, the evidence for a Jewish Holocaust is also often questionable. Photographs of empty buildings and piles of unidentified corpses are not the best proofs, and first-person testimonies do not support the gas chamber claims and 6,000,000 Jewish dead statistic. Indeed, Europe had struggled since WWI with flea and lice-borne disease called typhus and tried to battle it by disinfecting clothing with ‘gas chambers.’ The following Wikipedia entry hints at the scale of the problem in the concentration camps that, towards the end of the war, would have been prime breeding grounds for an epidemic of this fatal disease:

“Delousing stations were established for troops on the Western Front during World War I, but the disease ravaged the armies of the Eastern Front, with over 150,000 dying in Yugoslavia alone. Fatalities were generally between 10 and 40% of those infected, and the disease was a major cause of death for those nursing the sick.

“In 1922, the typhus epidemic reached its peak in Soviet territory, with some 25 to 30 million cases in Russia. Although typhus had ravaged Poland with some 4 million cases reported, efforts to stem the spread of disease in that country had largely succeeded by 1921 through the efforts of public health pioneers such as Hélène Sparrow and Rudolf Weigl.^[30] In Russia during the civil war between the White and Red Armies, typhus killed 3 million people,^{[31][32]} mainly civilians.

“During World War II, many German POWs after the loss at Stalingrad died of typhus. Typhus epidemics killed those confined to POW camps, ghettos, and Nazi concentration camps who were held in unhygienic conditions. Pictures of mass graves including people who died from typhus can be seen in footage shot at Bergen-Belsen concentration camp.^[33] Among thousands of prisoners in concentration camps such as Theresienstadt and Bergen-Belsen who died of typhus^[33] were Anne Frank, age 15, and her sister Margot, age 19. Major epidemics in the postwar chaos of Europe were averted only by widespread use of the newly discovered DDT to kill the lice on millions of refugees and displaced persons.

“The first typhus vaccine was developed by the Polish zoologist Rudolf Weigl in the interwar period.^[34] Better, less-dangerous and less-expensive vaccines were developed during World War II. Since then, some epidemics have occurred in Asia, Eastern Europe, the Middle East, and parts of Africa.”

I do not doubt that many Jews died; I just doubt the claim that Nazis, for whom Jews were treated as slave laborers, would exterminate their own slaves while their war economy depended heavily on such laborers. Secondly, Jewish leaders have a motive for exaggerating their claims of suffering, since they use the Holocaust story to defend their illegal occupation of Palestine and their oppression of the Palestinian people.

Evaluate the evidence provided at <https://encyclopedia.ushmm.org/tags/en/tag/holocaust>. Do any of the photographs or videos support the argument that Nazis deliberately exterminated six million Jews? Does this encyclopedia provide any primary documents supporting the Holocaust claims? APPENDIX

An Excerpt from Beyond Civilization

“The world has many, many Jews, many people who think they are special, who think they have the best religion, who think they are descended from a special family, secret or exclusive club, or part of a superior ethnic group, professional group, economic or political group. It’s all the same supremacist vanity and pride.

“Besides, [the Jewish] Holocaust is not special—only the word Holocaust is special, especially repugnant. It’s original meaning is “a burnt offering to God”—that means it refers to a ceremony intended to please an imaginary being. Do we want to imply that a genocide was done to please God?

What sick minds took this word and nailed it to the lives of the millions who died unnecessarily and unwillingly?

“But let us use this ugly word a little longer and explain that the Jewish Holocaust is not special; it is a drop in the bucket of death and extinction sweeping this globe. Hundreds of animals and plant species are becoming extinct every year, and many human subspecies and ethnic groups have been exterminated entirely. In fact, perhaps every ethnic group on Earth has suffered a Holocaust or Holocausts, and the Jewish Holocaust of WW2 was not even the worst holocaust of WW2.

“Then why does the media create the impression that the Jews suffered the only Holocaust? Perhaps a few wealthy Jews control the western media machine and perhaps they have motivations. Perhaps they want to generate pity for Jews—pity that poisons critical thinking and turn against critical thinkers and calls them anti-Semites the moment they raise questions.

“The Jewish Holocaust is considered special because it seems like the first time in history when one ethnic group intended to commit genocide and pursued it with all the efficiency afforded by modern technologies such as lethal gases, industrial cremation and grave-digging machines. But this narrative is mostly nonsense and void of empirical evidence. The alleged gas chambers were not air tight and were meant for disinfecting clothing to stop the spread of lice- and flea-borne diseases that were killing Jews in labor camps, depriving the Nazi war-economy of important productivity. The alleged cremation ovens are too small and, judging from photos I’ve seen, they were bread ovens intended to feed concentration camp workers on an industrial scale. Finally, mass graves were dug and hurried filled with corpses because disease and starvation swept through the camps as the war disrupted supply lines. Hunger and disease were the leading and almost sole causes of death among Jewish workers—and that means the Jewish Holocaust was hardly different from the American, Persian, Indian, Soviet, Chinese and other Holocausts.

“If I may invite more insults and invectives, I challenge Jewish Holocaust fundamentalists to reflect on the plausibility of the story that the Nazis wanted to and were able to persuade millions of European Jews to leave their homes and move to Poland. Why weren’t railways blown up? Why didn’t Jews mount an armed resistance? They didn’t because the Nazis actually invested a great deal of money and effort into attracting Jews and other minorities to their labor camps in Poland. Besides, Europe was still in the Great Depression, so who minority wouldn’t want the chance to live in Jewish ‘camps’ with guaranteed work, free shelter and food, and even a wage? Moreover, photographs show that these camps had swimming pools, soccer fields, and orchestras, and Polish train stations welcomed newcomers with displays of flowers and bushes. So, most Jews came voluntarily, and originally the concentration camps were labor camps many of the trappings of civilization. Of course, the war turned them into death camps.

“Against this empirically supported and plausible narrative, we are supposed to believe that hundreds of thousands of Jewish families were forced to go to Poland to be exterminated and that during this mass migration the whole of Christian Europe did nothing and the whole world was blind and the Jewish people did not mount any serious resistance, did not shoot a single train engineer or other driver?

“And why didn’t wealthy Jews offer to pay for the freedom of all Jews? They certainly had enough money to tempt Hitler. They didn’t offer to redeem their poor fellow Jews because greed, miserliness and heartlessness sits on the clouds of wealth, and they didn’t for the same reason that wealthy people everywhere do nothing substantial to address poverty, hunger, and disease.

“And if, as we are asked to believe, the Nazis were primarily interested in killing Jews in Poland—why in Poland? Does Poland have some special status as a burial ground and necropolis? Obviously, Poland was chosen because the labor camps were there, and the labor camps were there because Poland was ideally positioned to provide supplies for the German military, the bulk of which was at war with the Soviet Union. Moreover, I must ask, if the Nazis were primarily interested in killing Jews, why didn’t they kill them in their homes? Why did they invest so much time and energy in bringing them to Poland? Most historians would have us believe that the Nazis had simply created an elaborate and diabolical scheme to dupe the Jews into volunteering to ‘work’ in Poland, and that this, somehow, made the genocide possible or more efficient than more straightforward methods of genocide.

“But the Western Allies had to exaggerate the evil of the Nazis in order to justify and forget their cowardly bombing massacres of German civilians living in Dresden and elsewhere. For that, America has not apologized. For the destruction of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Vietnam, Libya, Iraq and dozens of other countries where the U.S. military executed crimes against humanity, America has not apologized. Only Germany has apologized.

“Now we are all Jews in a global Holocaust. We all collaborate with our enemies by continuing to work for the global economy that is killing life on Earth. We trust our leaders—our enemies—and think they will help us survive and stay out of the clutches of poverty even as they rob us through taxation and corporate thievery. And we are trusting because that is what our schools and religions teach us to be. The most faithful Jews trusted that their imaginary God would protect them, and they reaped the rewards of their religious superstitions, and they have not yet learned the lesson history taught them.

“Why didn’t Jews in concentration camps organize general strikes? Didn’t they know that the work they were doing was contributing to the deaths of millions of non-Jewish Europeans? A general strike would have worked, as it works in any country. The Nazis depended on Jewish labor to manufacture basic war necessities cheaply; a strike would have crippled the Nazi war machine and spared the lives of millions of Russians—a people historically hated by Jews, possibly for good reasons, but not for reasons that justify contributing to their Holocaust.

“Every Jew who worked in a concentration camp was a Nazi collaborator. That is not a popular thing to say. Oh, but what choice did they have? Ah, isn’t that the same excuse uttered by millions of Americans employed in their for-profit war industry? Billions of people employed in all manner of industries destructive of life voice the same excuse: “My job is my life!” On the contrary! Your job spells death for everyone! To Hell with all your jobs! Have you no shame?

“And what did the Jews get for their collaboration? Starvation, disease, medical experimentations and executions. Let that serve as a foreshadowing of the future that awaits the modern, universal Jew. No, let that serve as an explanation of what we are already living.

“Who will save us from this global war on life? No God, no nation, no international alliance and no high-tech savior will defend Life. Nothing can save us but knowledge married to courage.”
